KEYNOTE SPEAKER & ROUNDTABLE DISCUSSION

THE RISING TAIWAN NEW ECONOMY IN CAPITAL MARKETS AND HOW TAIWAN INNOVATION BOARD IS SHAPING THE GROWTH

Taiwan has traditionally focused its financial and human resources in the “hardware” sectors, including the labor-intensive manufacturing and semi-conductor industries. However, such trends may be changing. During a 40-minute presentation, Alex Lee will share his insights on how small diversions of capital into the “software” sector, coupled with policy changes undertaken by the government may help shape a whole new look for the rising Taiwan New Economy. He will also focus on capital markets, as it reflects these international economic changes and international investors’ forecast. Based on capital market data, he will analyze the dynamic changes of Asian capital markets in global, regional and sectoral contexts. Afterwards, we invite the attending ALFA International attorneys and clients to weigh in with their comments and questions in an interactive roundtable discussion. We hope this proves to be an engaging and dynamic exchange on a very relevant topic.
